Shylily
@shylilytwitch

The absolute audacity to sit here & continue to manipulate & gaslight is absolute insanity.

The pain & mental torment you've caused to the ones closest & most supportive of you has been devastating & I have never been so heart broken & hurt so badly for my friends... You are the fakest person I've ever had the displeasure of supporting! Reading (& hearing) of how you've really viewed me behind my back, not just through screenshots of your Man but also your very OWN messages while having to sit here & read through these bullshit lies you spin makes me want to vomit.

To claim that you didn't know a SINGLE THING & had zero awareness of what your Man was up to when everyone who's shared even a single moment with you knows that you basically operate as the same person, sharing every waking moment while loving to jump at the slightest opportunity to turn into your most slanderous self as soon as the opportunity was given, even when talking about your friends is sickening.

I have experienced your own actions without Red, in a situation where in your own screenshotted words, you express a "pressure to live up to what Lily is", and proceeded to throw one of your most loyal & supportive friends under the bus after months of continuous planning just because you consistently chose business over friends, never feeling bad for failing them.

Just to earn the bag & compete with me over a VCard collab that YOU rescheduled to be on the exact date your friend needed you to keep an important promise. You actively lied about it to them, instead blaming ME for a collab YOU rescheduled, adding me to the pool of excuses to save your ass, when you realized you were being a bad friend. Why blame me for choosing to miss an obligation YOU agreed to. On one of the most important days in that friends career?

Everything you do is out of competition through your constant need to one-up the people who are the sole reason you even have these opportunities & platforms to earn from to begin with. You're welcome btw...

You claim that "it's just business" well, in the business world, there has to be accountability & all you've done is try to shove it away & admit to nothing. In true narcissistic fashion you're only feeling sorry about yourself & your own consequences & your career & try to salvage it.

Shylily was a friend, but I've never been close with her. I wanted to get to know her better because of how close she was to my other friends. She's someone I've always looked up to. I saw her as a role model, and as of this year, a potential business partner. I wanted to live up to who she's been for the vtuber community, and Gamer Supps now that I held the same title. She was the only example of a vtuber in that position before me, and set the bar for what a Gamer Supps part owner is and does. I've never been jealous of her, or envious of what she had, and I didn't see her as my competition at any point.

Since October of 2024, Shylily and I had been messaging back and forth every now and then in our dms, leading up to our interactions before and during our VCard collab you saw in the previous section. From the second half of March, she stopped replying to my messages. It's not odd to get busy and miss messages, and I was guilty of that all the time to too many people, but it was out of the ordinary and was going on for almost a whole month by the time I was canceled. This was alongside her seemingly dodging collabs we were both a part of and offputting reactions to me raiding her. I became anxious about what was going on in March and April because I viewed her in such high regard.

Shylily didn't have her own document about me, and didn't say anything until after I did, but she was the first one Nano contacted about any of this and was involved the entire way through. Shylily pulled everyone together to organize, plan, write, and post the documents that ended in my cancellation, and her lie filled reply to my apology was the final nail in my coffin. Her actions show she clearly had something against me before Nano ever said anything to her, and she couldn't take accountability and admit to it until I was already in the ground. Shylily said she wanted her own section, so here it is.

I'll show and explain everything I was experiencing with Shylily for the couple months leading up to what happened since it's relevant to understand what Red told Nano in their messages. I won't be repeating things that included Shylily in the previous section about VCard, and this section will pick up right before the release of the game and my collab with her.

VCard Launch Information

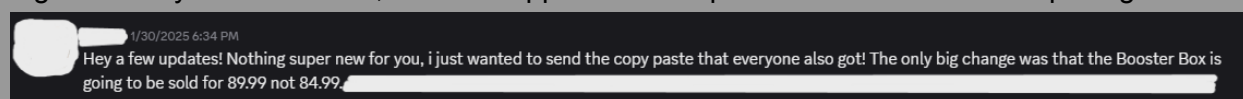

I need to talk about this first, because I made a mistake and knew it upset Shylily, even if she couldn't admit it to me.

1/26/2025 - Red and I were planning my stream for VCard's launch day and asked Gamer Supps about Shylily's "exclusive" unboxing stream to make sure we weren't stepping on her toes. During my stream on the 31st, I didn't start doing anything VCard related until 3pm EST out of respect for her. Red then gave Gamer Supps a list of questions I wrote down for him that my community had asked me about VCard on one of my previous streams.

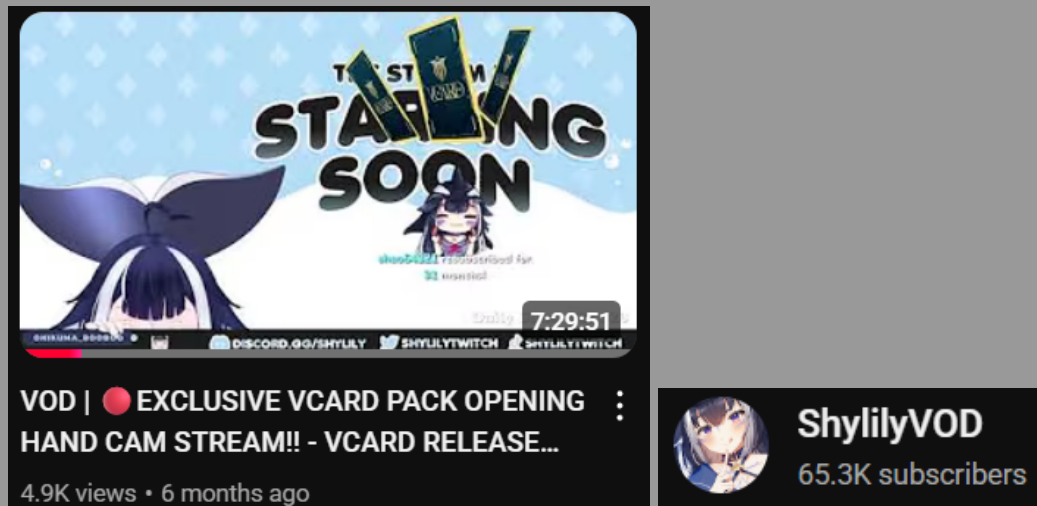

1/30/2025 - Since the questions asked were stated to be from my community, and I wasn't told that this information was confidential and couldn't be shared, I assumed it was okay for me to tell my chat the answers to their questions on my stream. This stream was the day before the game's launch day, and no info had been released on what was going on, how things would work, or what things were priced at. The information I gave made it onto the Gamer Supps or VCard subreddit, and into Shylily's Discord server, both citing me specifically as the source.

Right after my stream ended, Gamer Supps sent me updated info about the box pricing.

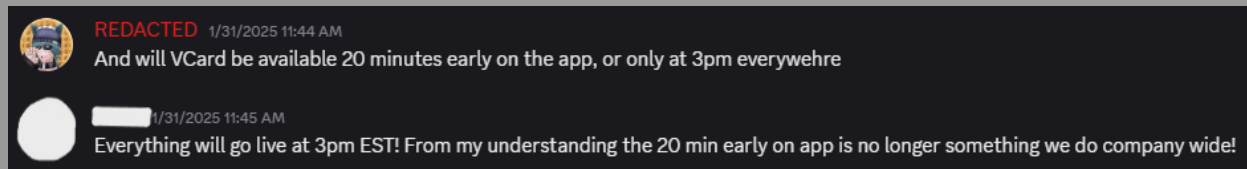

1/31/2025 - This was the day VCard launched. Shylily talked about how angry and annoyed she was about VCard info leaking early, including incorrect info. She claimed she didn't know who leaked information, saying "I guess people are just excited to be the ones to spread stuff before me."

33:54 - 44:08 <https://youtu.be/UYTYuSezyuA?t=2034>

Of the info I gave out the day before, I was wrong about the price by five dollars, which I was only updated about after my stream ended. The other thing I advertised that I assumed would be the case, but was wrong about, was VCard being available twenty minutes early on the Gamer Supps app. All of their drops were consistently like this for a long time, but it was only on VCard's launch day did Red and I find out that this was discontinued. Everything else was correct, but I didn't know I wasn't supposed to say anything about it.

Shylily said that official sources were the only ones with correct info, meaning herself and the Gamer Supps or VCard Twitter accounts. When someone asked if I was an official source, she said no. I was a part owner now, and I didn't know there was a difference between me and the other official sources. I was given the information directly from the source, thought it was okay to make public, and thought I was doing the right thing by answering questions the community had. My motivation wasn't to "be the first" to share this info. The community didn't know what was going on just a day before the game launched, and instead of leaving them in the dark, I gave them the answers to the questions asked on their behalf. As a new part owner, people were looking to me for answers about VCard, and I thought I was doing the right thing by informing them. I was wrong to do so and made a mistake, and I made sure to correct the info I had wrong on my stream on launch day.

That night I messaged Shylily to apologize about what I did. After what happened with Numi two nights earlier, I was making an effort to be more open about things. Shylily avoided saying I was the person who was leaking info, or admitting I was who she was mad at. I was the only one who could've shared the incorrect price and was the one mistakenly advertising the early app preorders, and there were posts citing me as the source of all this leaked information. Shylily knew it was me, sounded pretty mad on stream at the leaker who was “excited to be the (one) to spread stuff before (her)”, but danced around it as if she was never mad at me. In the end, she praised me for “having the balls” to reach out to her about this.

Hi Lily, I heard you were upset about some vcard information going out earlier than you would've liked, and I think it was from me. A few days ago I told gamersupps that my community had questions about vcard, one of which being about prices. At the time, they told me a box was $84.99, and being an answer to a question I asked on behalf of my community, that made it seem like it was okay to share. I also only found out today that gamersupps is discontinuing the app early access, while I was under the assumption that vcard would launch with the same access like other drops over the past year. So I want to apologize to you if I was the one to cause you stress and confusion for the community. As soon as I was given updated info, at the start of my stream today, I made sure to correct my mistake from before. But I'm really happy that vcard's launch did so well and I hope we can have fun together tomorrow, if you're still down 🍷

don't worry
i had some annoying chatters tell me a bunch of info never released & they were spreading stuff around in my discord
when i literally told em the day before, that the info is not gonna be available until launch but they blew up my discord, claiming vtubers have been claiming that stuff on stream and then today i had a bunch of people in my chat upset that "i changed the prices"
like bro, get off my dick lmao, i didn't do shit
but yeah it was during my day off and i didn't wanna make a tweet or anything correcting shit cuz that's lowkey.. a bit weird (like... making drama out of a potential misunderstanding (like in your case LMAO)
so i just mentioned on stream to not trust any sources that have been spreading info & only believe info i publish, gamersupps, vcards or any other direct source

i also doubt you were the only one talking about it plus
if you asked gg on behalf of chat
& no one told you it wasn't supposed to be public
then thats on them

they should have clarified that to you literally nothing you could have done about that

Shylily so i just mentioned on stream to not trust any sources that have been spreading info & only believe info i publish, gamersupps, vcards or any other direct source

1/31/2025 11:38 PM

this part was a little weird on stream tho because today a lot of info has indeed been made public and a bunch of people have been making posts & stuff about vcard & any additional info so i hope no one caught strays

hold up

Yours and [redacted] are the only completed pages
After 4 boxes

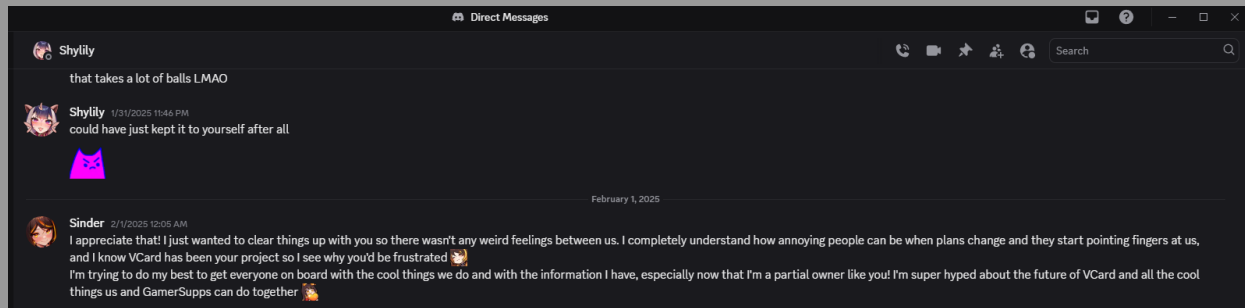

ALSO of course i am still down to pull together tomorrow LMAO only reason i havent reacted to the sheet yet is cuz i saw it as i was gonna go live & i was already behind cuz i am a master procrastinator & did not get shit done til after i was supposed to be on

OH and btw
huge fking respect to reach out about the info leak stuff that takes a lot of balls LMAO

Message @Shylily

2/16/2025 - In another conversation with Gamer Supps a couple weeks later, we asked for them to clarify to us what is and isn't able to be shared publicly going forward, after what happened during VCard's launch. I was told that "There was not really a certain source" the launch info was supposed to come from.

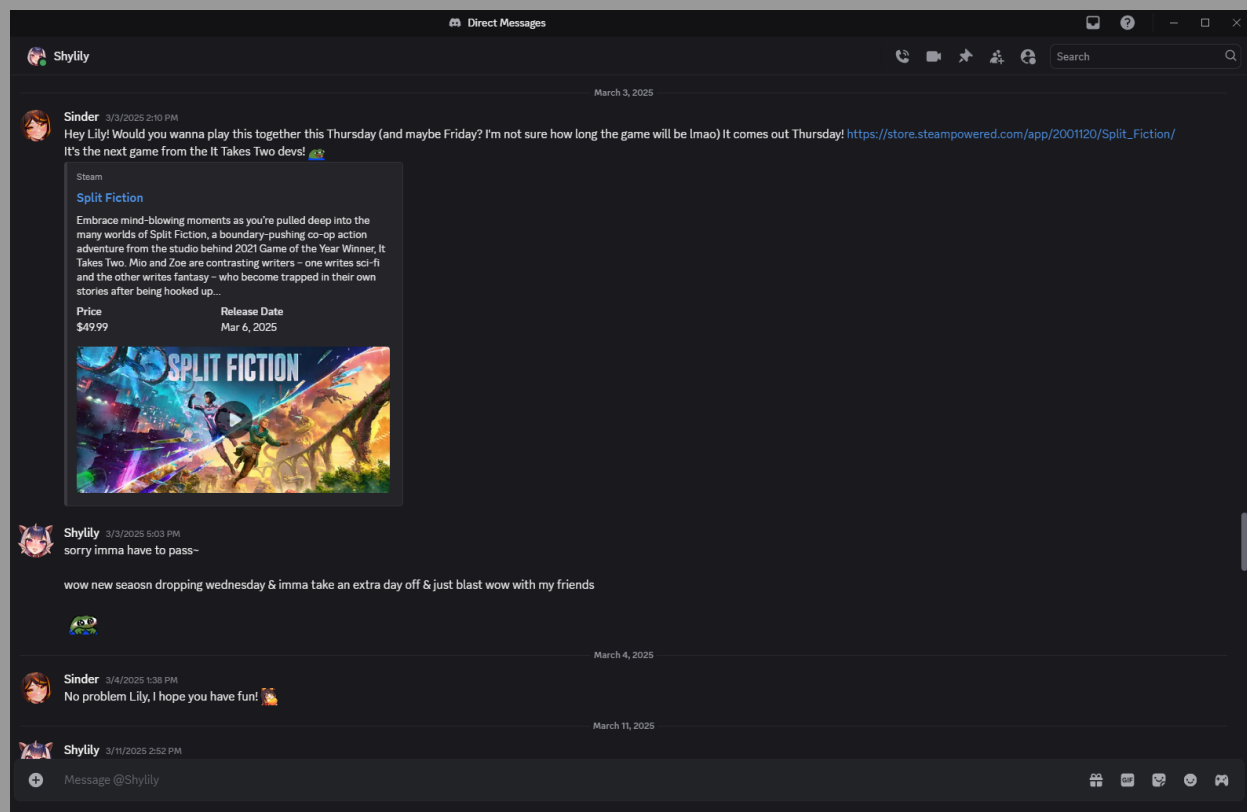

2/5/2025 - The very last collab I had with Shylily was a few days after our VCard collab.

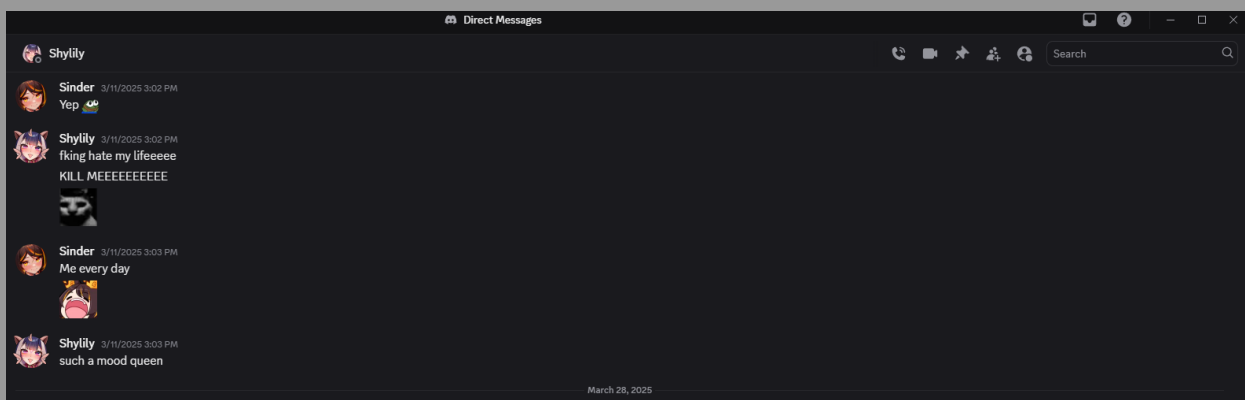

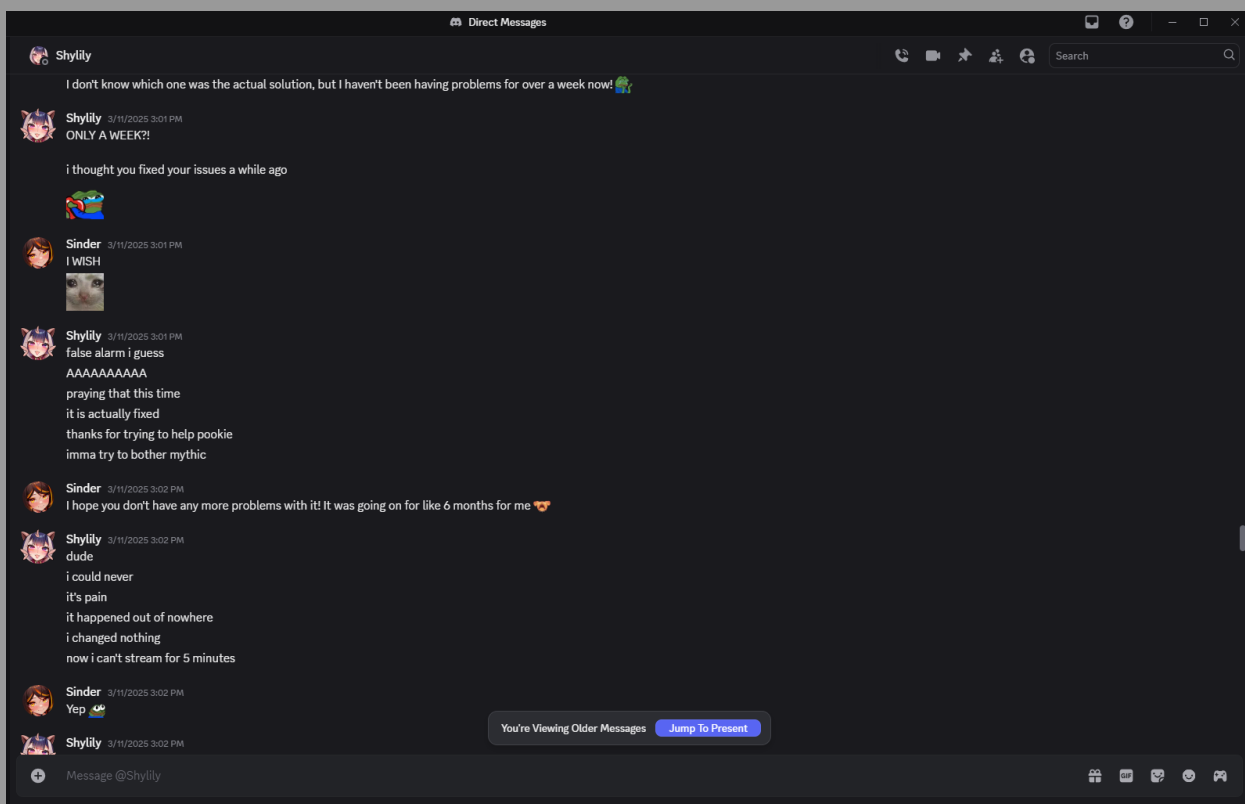

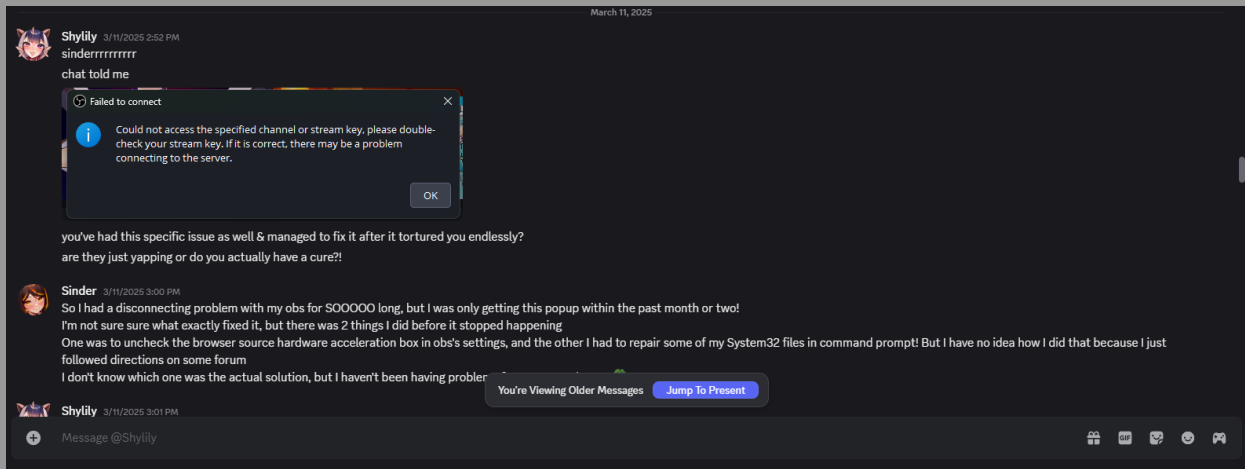

<https://youtu.be/Ltkhi8LQFtM>

3/3/2025 - This was the first time either of us messaged each other since our VCard collab on February 1st. I asked Shylily if she wanted to play Split Fiction with me. It was a long game that we would've been able to bond over while getting to know each other better. She told me she'd pass on the game, and that was fine. Then I asked Numi, who was also unavailable. She told me that Yuzu was interested and I happily played through the game with her.

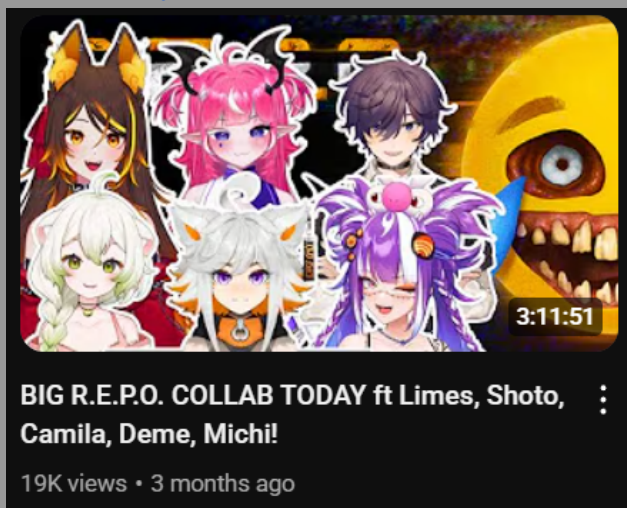

3/11/2025 - The last time Shylily and I spoke was when she reached out to me about disconnecting problems she was having with OBS. Trying to fix my own disconnecting problems are what made me move back in with my parents before this conversation.

After this there were two different REPO collabs Shylily and I were both supposed to be a part of. This was when I thought things started to change between me and Shylily.

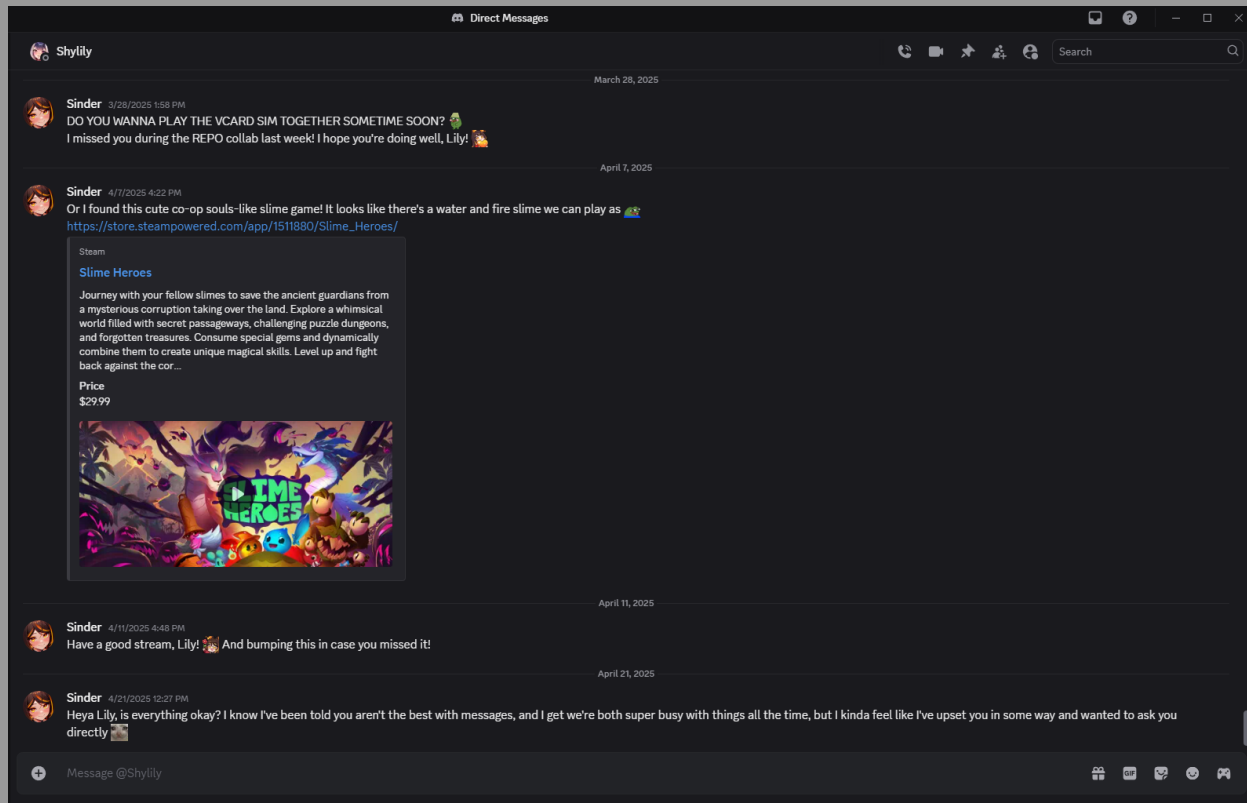

3/21/2025 - This was the first REPO collab. It was originally going to be on the 15th, but was rescheduled to the 21st. Shylily was supposed to be there, but she decided to cancel last minute due to a Bikini Bottoms collab she had going on that day. I understood just like everyone else, and this alone wasn't a problem to me.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aA_T5oZP6Oo

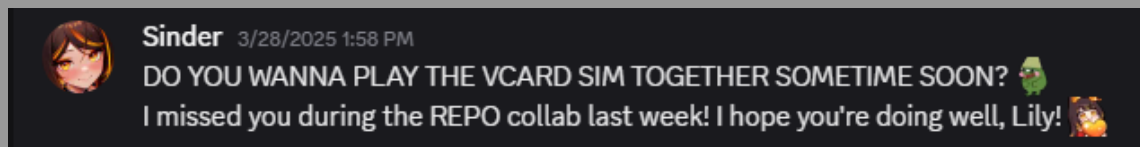

3/27/2025 - This second collab never happened, but was being planned in a group chat. Shylily was added to the chat but apparently couldn't make it shortly after. She never messaged in this chat directly before she was removed. These are all of the messages here, and it never went anywhere after this.

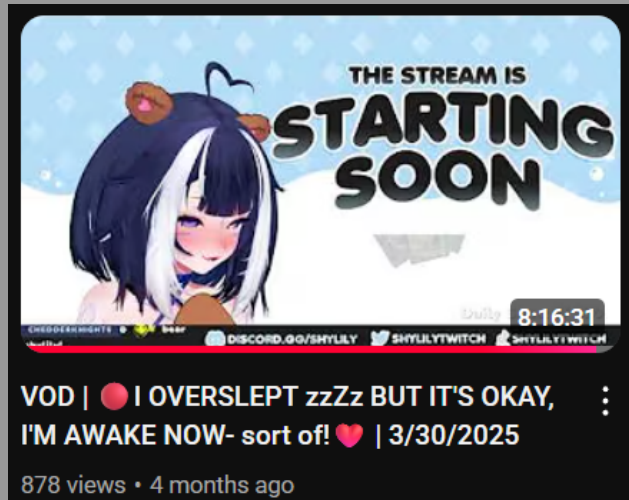

3/28/2025 - I messaged Shylily the day after the above collab chat happened when the new VCard rules were announced and the TableTop Sim version was revealed. I would've thought she'd love the idea of playing together to advertise and show off the new rules of her game. It'd generate hype and renewed interest in VCard after lots of people were dissatisfied with the first edition's game mechanics. It was an idea motivated by the business implications of it, but it was something to do together as friends that I thought we'd both be excited about. It would've benefited us both, and the entire brand.

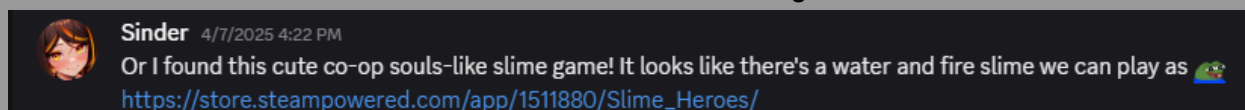

3/30/2025 - I raided Shylily:
6:52:52 <https://youtu.be/yDBEnZN4dso?t=24772>

Shylily greeted the raiders and didn't say hi to me, or thank me for the raid. I didn't see it when it happened, but If you were to watch for another five minutes, after she'd basically moved on with her stream, you'd see she then did quickly thank me for the raid. If she was able to greet my raiders when the raid first happened then why couldn't she have also said hi and thanked me then? I wasn't upset about this since it was just one raid. Nano's document had a link to the exact timestamp this raid happened in Shylily's defense.

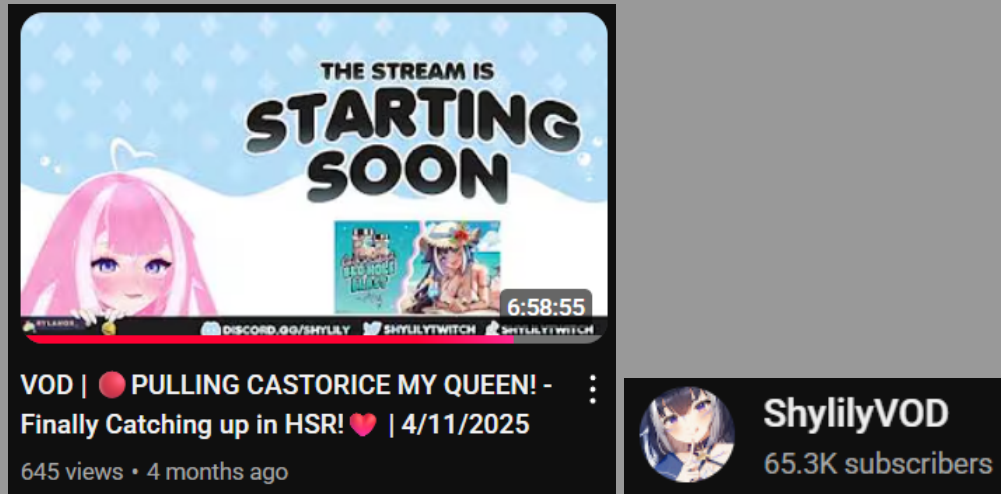

with me and that somehow justified their actions. They imply Lily ignored Sinder when she spent over a minute thanking the raid which you can see in this clip.

4/7/2025 - A week later, I still hadn't heard from Shylily. I messaged her again about playing a different game together. I just wanted to hang out since she hadn't been able to make the past two collabs that we were both supposed to be a part of, and maybe she didn't like my idea about VCard. She turned me down when I asked about Split Fiction a month earlier, so it's not like she hadn't done that before, or couldn't have done that again.

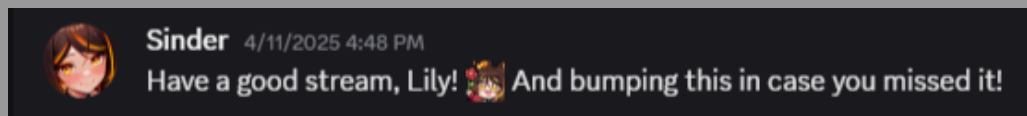

4/11/2025 - I raided Shylily again:

5:49:28 <https://youtu.be/Vaz46f5QNZI?t=20968>

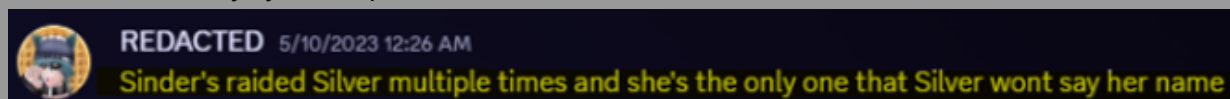

Shylily didn't say hi or thank me for the raid like you'd expect your friend to do, or any streamer to do. She said hi to my raiders, but didn't thank them either. She goes on to read one of my chat messages, but this was the second time Shylily had an offputting reaction to me sending my community to her in the past couple weeks, coupled with removing herself from collabs I was a part of and ghosting my messages. This more recent raid was not linked in Nano's document.

I decided to dm her again to bump what I sent her before. After still not hearing from her I was convinced I had done something wrong.

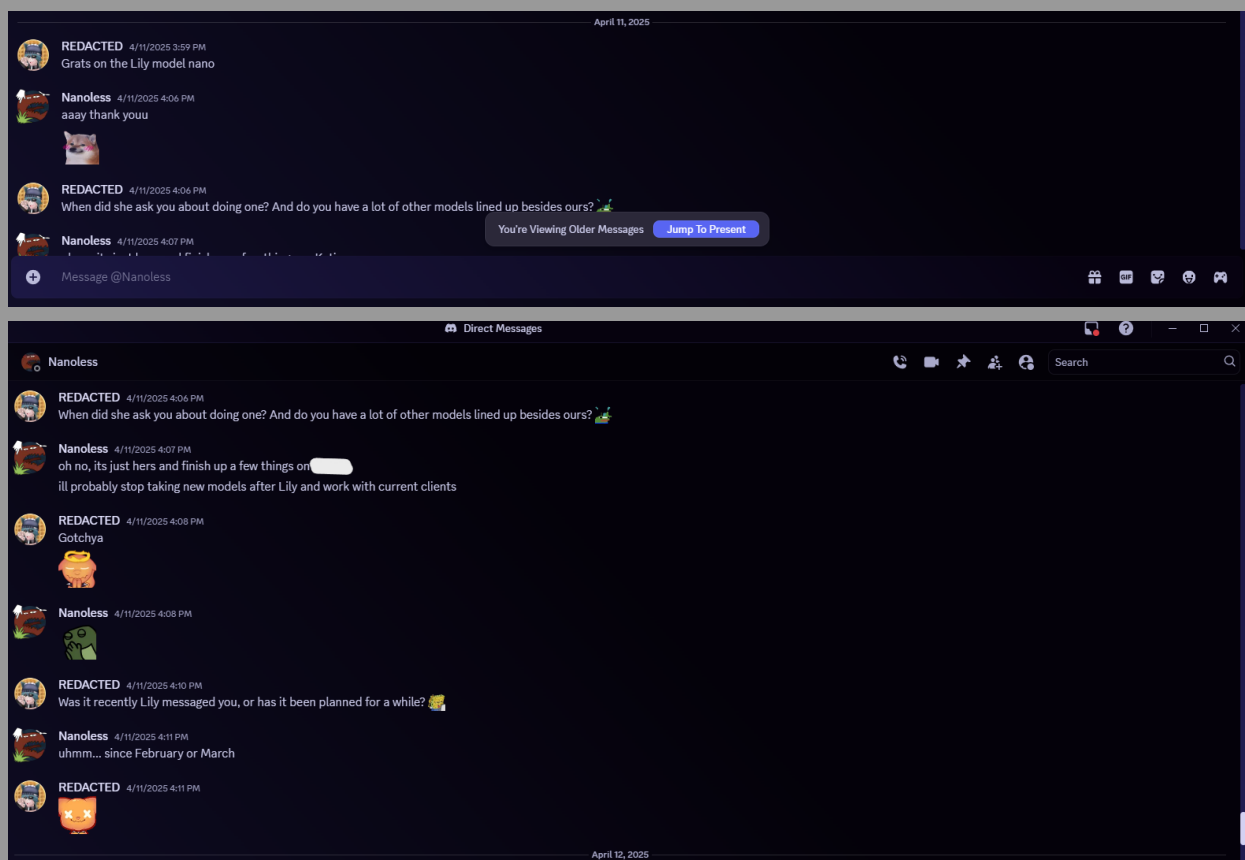

I wasn't expecting an over the top reaction from Shylily just because I raided. Just a hello and thanks for the raid, like any other streamer would do, especially from someone who was a friend. In the past, Silvervale, who Red and I knew had a problem with me, purposely refused to say my name when I raided her. She continually ghosted my messages, and got a model from Nano at a suspicious time, among other things, which will all be shown in her section. These specific experiences with someone else who we knew didn't like me further led both Red and I to believe that Shylily had a problem with me for some reason.

I wouldn't have thought that the individual things I experienced with Shylily were pointing to a greater problem if they weren't all happening over the same few weeks.

4/11/2025 - The same day as my second raid, Red saw Nano working on a new model for Shylily for the first time. He messaged her and asked questions about the timeline of the model.

Red: I asked Nano about Lily and her projects just like I would any other time, and Nano gave me the information, just like she would any other time. I thought that Lily getting a model from Nano could possibly be related to how she was treating Sinder lately.

That night I saw Red and he told me Nano was working on a model for Shylily, but didn't say anything about him asking Nano about it, or that he would. I was happy with the idea that Shylily and I were going to be model sisters, especially since we're both part owners of the same company. Red thought we might have to consider that we'd be competing with Shylily with the way she was treating me and the fact she was working with Nano now, similar to how things were with Silvervale. I didn't agree. In my mind, Shylily and I weren't going to be "competing" for anything, and this would be another thing we'd have in common to hopefully bring us together. I was only concerned with why she would've been upset with me lately and was anxious about it.

4/12/2025 - The next day, Red went back to Nano to ask about Shylily again and tell her what I've been experiencing with her. These are also the last messages Red had with Nano, and the last conversation either of us had with her in either of our dms and project server. I had no knowledge of these conversations until Nano's document was released two weeks later.

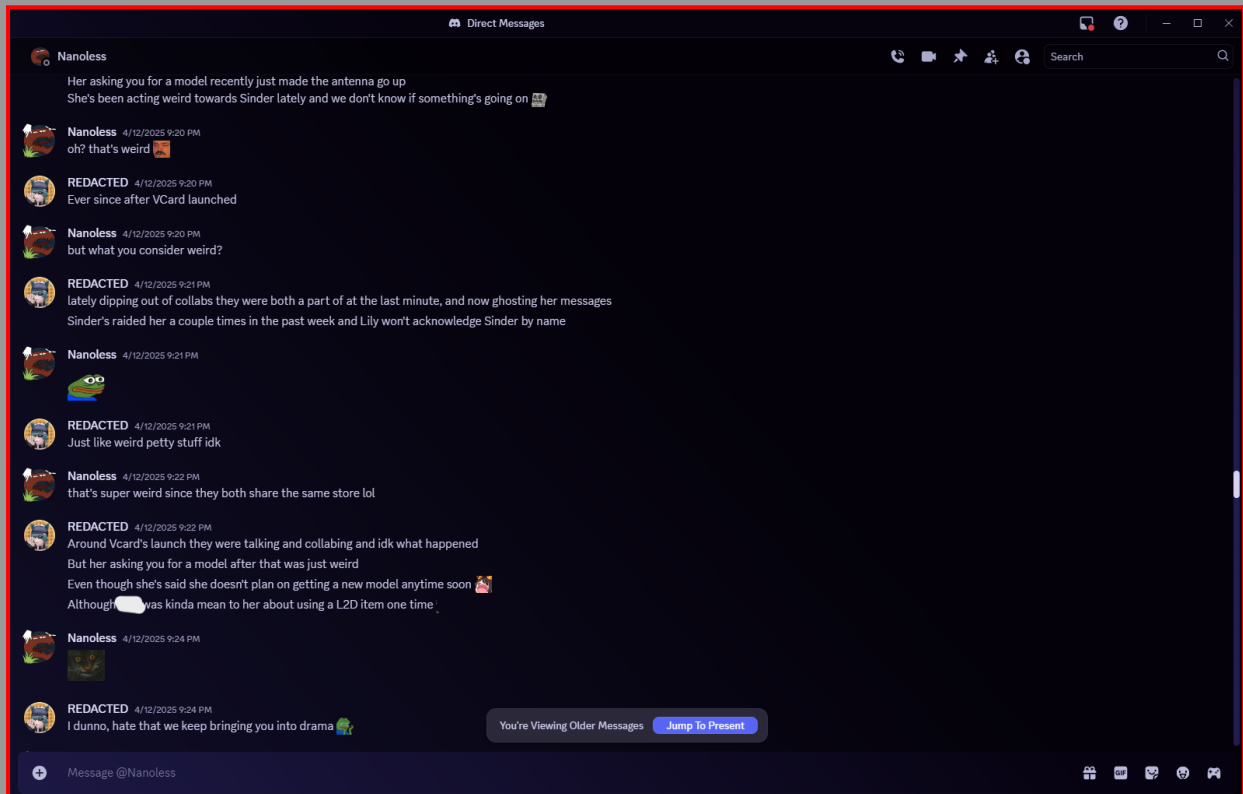

In my apology I wrote:

"I had no idea there was even a conversation about Shylily recently between Red and Nano until reading her document. It's true I had confided in Red that lately I hadn't been hearing from Lily like I had in the past and was worried something was wrong, but that's as far as it went, and he took it upon himself to try digging for more info"

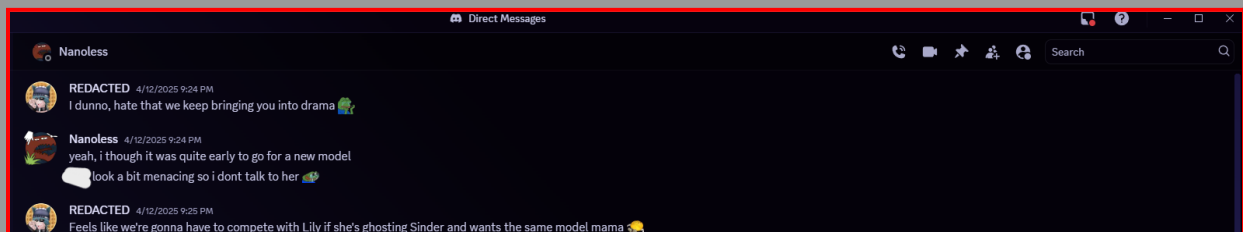

Red: I didn't share any of this conversation or the conversation above with Sinder because there wasn't anything super meaningful or pressing I thought she needed to know about.

Red: I followed up with Nano about Lily because of the way she was acting towards Sinder over the past few weeks. It really seemed like Lily had a problem with Sinder.

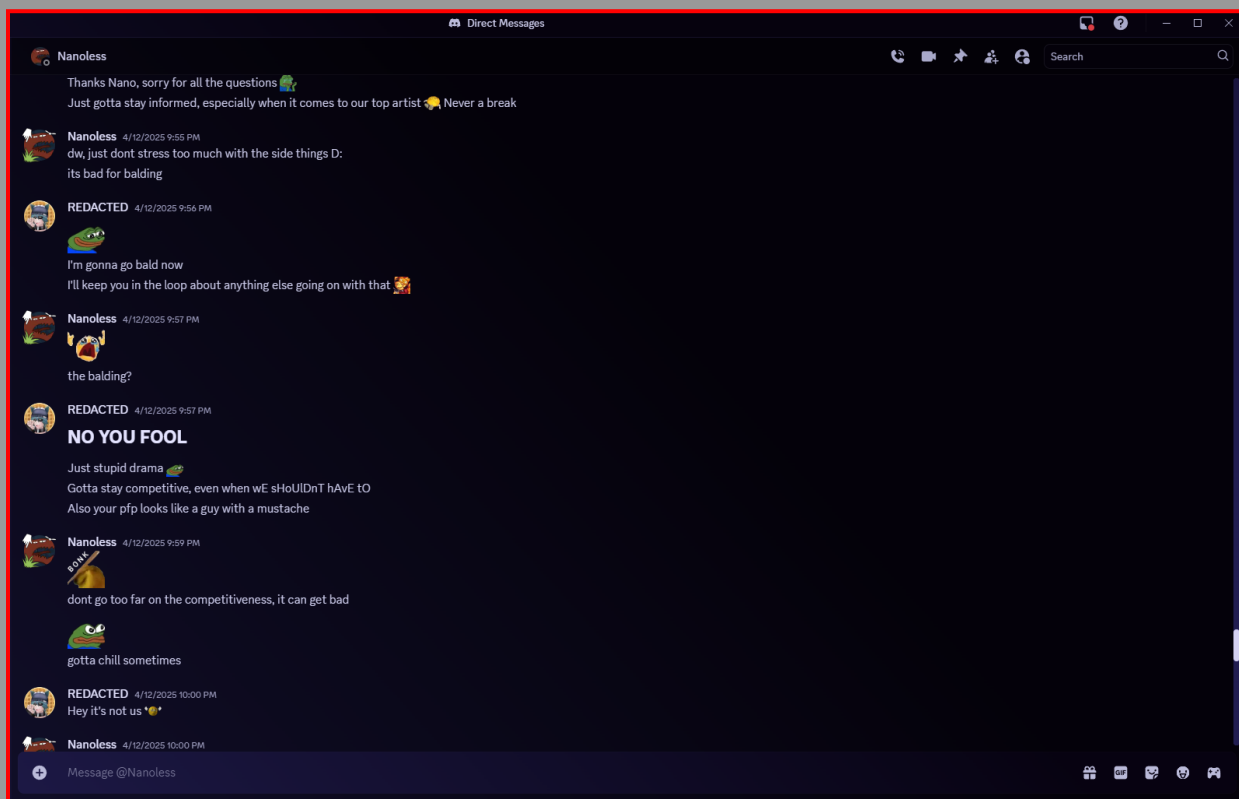

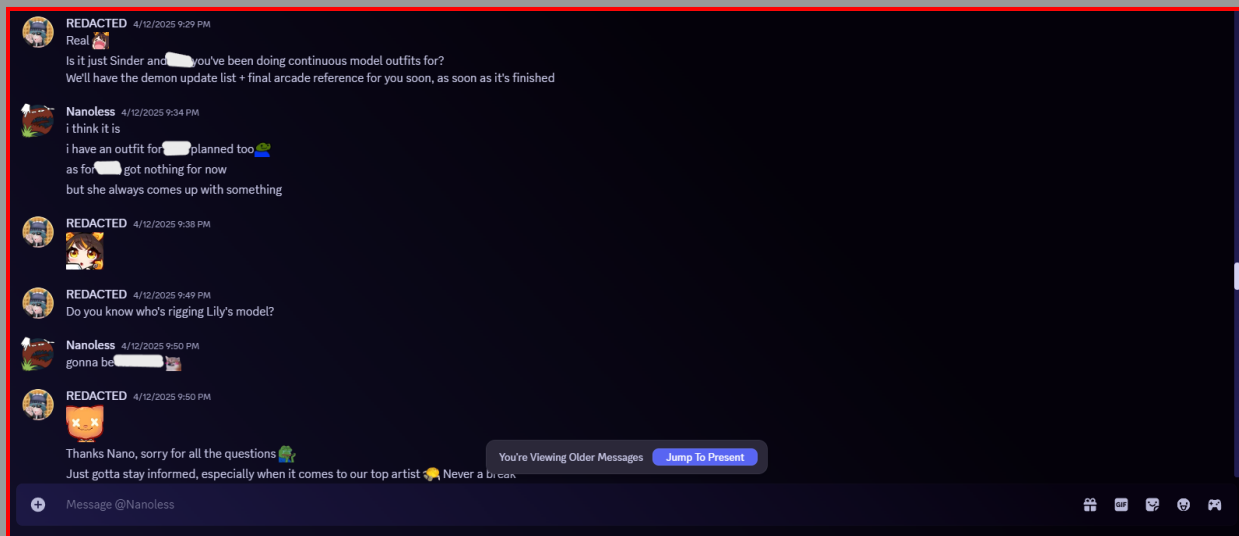

Red: I didn't lie about anything I said here. Me saying "Ever since after VCard launched" was because around then was the last time I remembered them collabing and talking with each other, like I said after. I remembered Lily saying it was too soon to get a new model around the start of the year, but I didn't consider the 3 to 4 months that passed when I said this, and obviously Lily changed her mind since then.

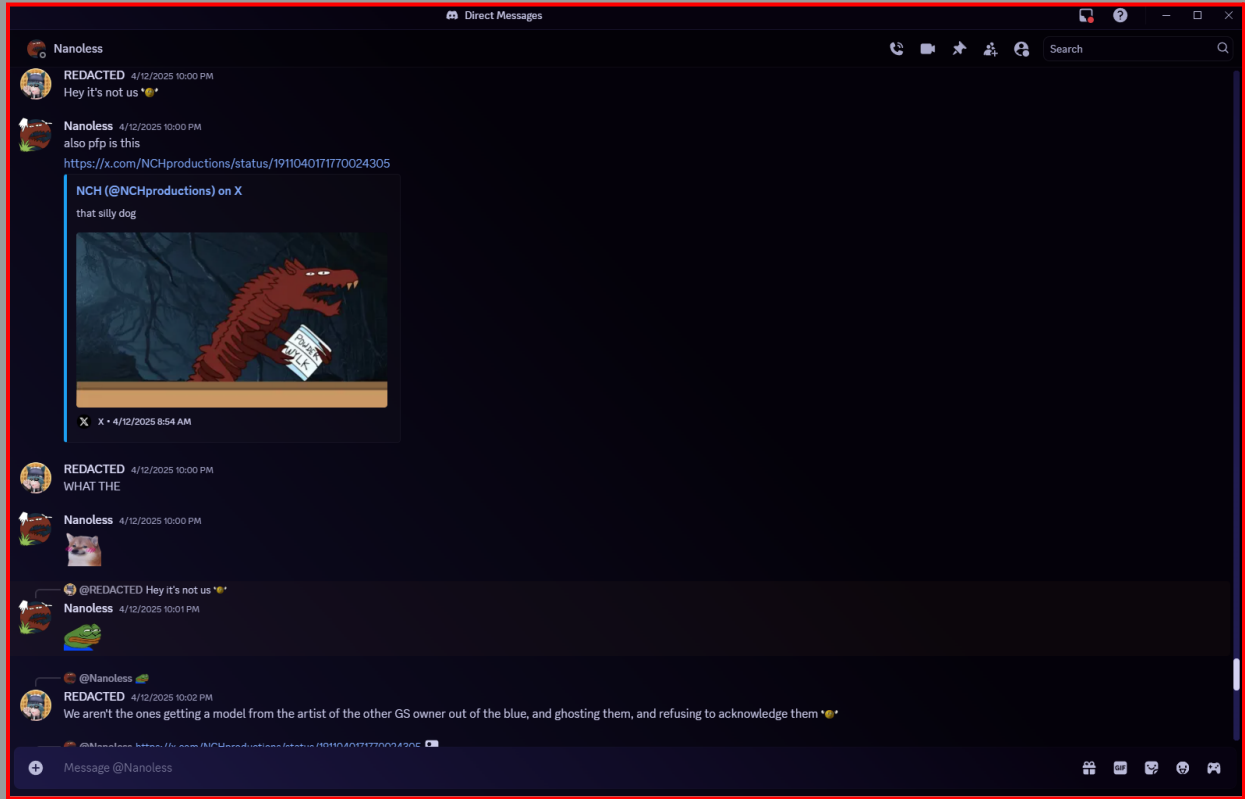

Red: This is the only time I ever said anything to anyone other than Sinder about competing with Lily. If Lily had a problem with Sinder, and at the same time started working with our model artist, then yes, we wouldn't be working together anymore. In my mind we'd be competing with her, at the very least over Nano's time. If Lily wasn't treating Sinder differently, I wouldn't have had any reason to think the timing of Lily's model with Nano was suspect, and no reason to ask Nano anything when she started working on Lily's model. I would've felt the same way about it that Sinder did.

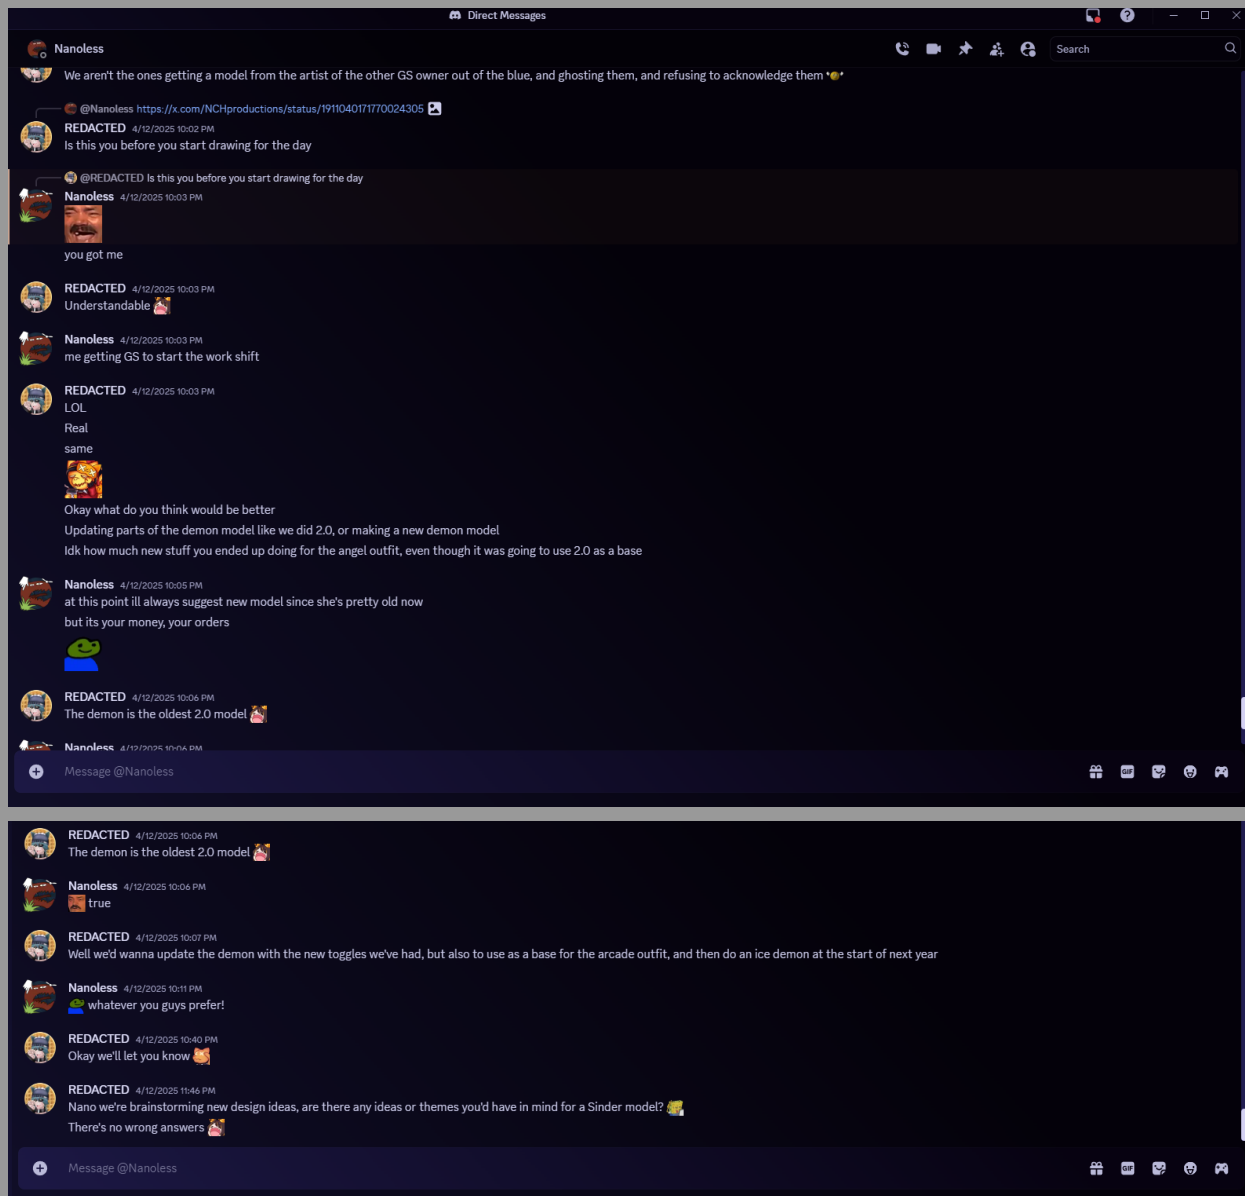

Between these screenshots they were talking about something unrelated.

Red: I stayed informed with Nano's plans because of who she was to us and our brand. It's always been that way and it's never been a problem with her. I said we have to stay competitive, as in a general sense with the entire vtuber sphere, "even when we sHoUIDnT hAvE tO" with someone like Lily who we thought was a friend, now acting this way.

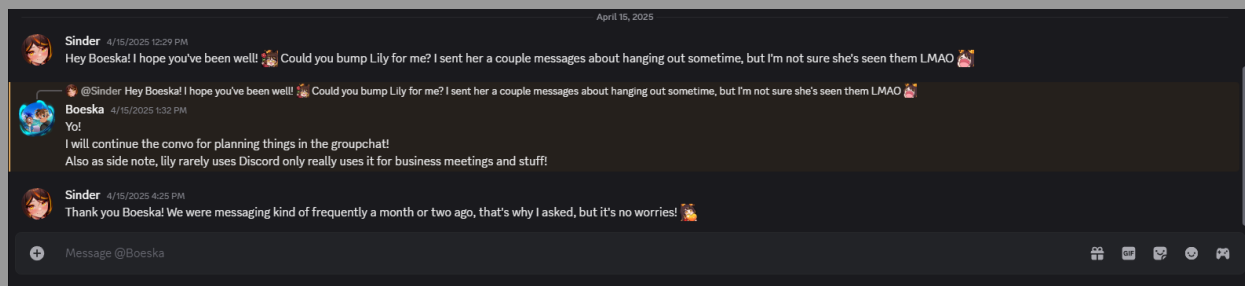

Red: It wasn't either of us who had a problem with Lily or treating her differently for no apparent reason.

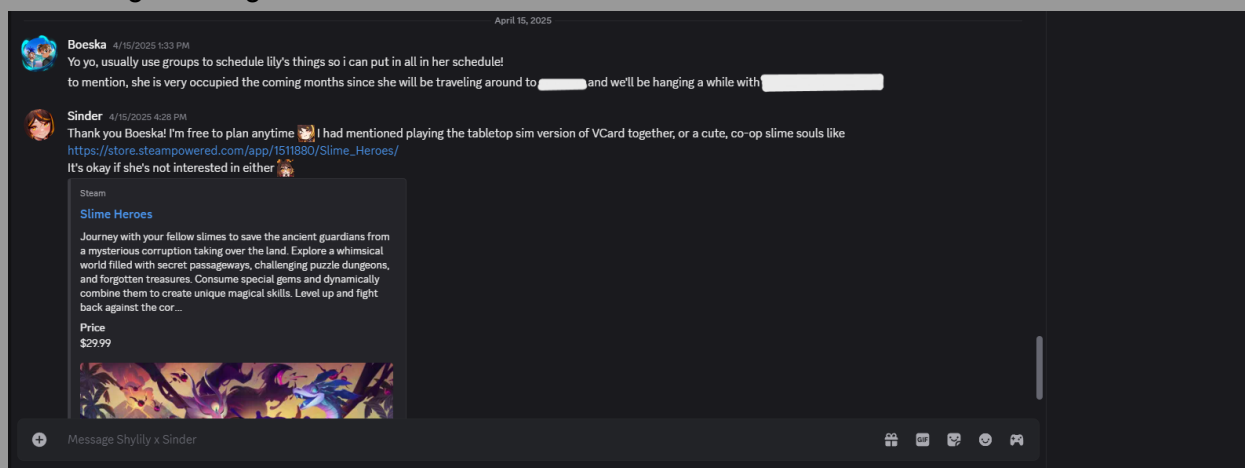

Red: These are my last messages with Nano. I guess saying anything bad about Lily was a step too far for her. I don't know why if she did think I was lying about Lily for some reason she didn't just ask me to verify what I was telling her instead of leaking our messages. I never asked, told, implied, or said anything to Nano about not working with Lily or canceling her model she already started, and I had no intention to.

4/15/2025 - I still hadn't heard from Shylily, so I tried messaging Boeska about my previous dms to her.

Boeska told me Shylily “rarely uses Discord” and “only really uses it for business meetings and stuff”, which was weird because until these past few weeks, I didn't have any problems getting a hold of her in our dms. I hadn't had to message Boeska to get to Shylily since before October 2024, so this was out of the ordinary by now.

The messages below were the same day in the group chat with us and Shylily. I was fine with not doing anything together and I just wanted to hear from her since I had no idea if something was wrong. Nothing else was ever said in this chat.

Boeska told me Shylily would be “very occupied in the coming months” because of a trip somewhere, implying I shouldn't expect to plan something.

4/21/2025 - This was my last message to Shylily, five days before anyone posted their documents. I tried to talk to her about whatever was going on and clear things up between us. Shylily never responded, even after praising me in the past for “having the balls” to reach out to her.
